"I personally felt that our LLC was able to help reinforce bonding with other students, as well as the opportunity to help assist and take the lead on different initiatives when it comes to community building that helped with developing interpersonal skills. As we continued this, the students became more independent and community building & bonding became more natural to their experience. They were able to make more personal connections with a smaller floor, meeting students of different backgrounds, majors, student involvement, and being able to share with one another and learn from each other's experiences. Our floor had planned out many different events that focused on different aspects of their residential student experience; introducing them to other first gen students and departments"
I feel that being able to create community and learn better how to navigate school is what was most important. This was a year to experience and learn new things about our first gen identity, where we learned to bond, meet new people, and explore academic and career options moving forward.
